I was the Architect you were the Pantomime
I tried to find you but you're always lost in time
Maybe some fluttering thing caught your eye
Hope nothing worse cause I don't like to cry so I
Look at the screen try to find me a friend to call
You feel the same always backed up against the wall
I wouldn't mind but it takes so much out of me
Could shed a tear but I don't like to cry

Chorus

Day after day we'd imagine the future
Saw so many lives we could not live them all
Now that it's ended the world is much calmer
For what we see clearer prevented our fall
What we see clearer prevented our fall

You were the Architect I was the Pantomime
I tried to catch you but you left me way behind
Always were running I didn't know why
Hurt just a bit but I don't like to cry
Maybe you noticed without knowing what it meant
Too busy thinking of winning the argument
It still confuses me not knowing why
Could shed a tear but I don't like to cry

Chorus

You were the Pantomime fighting the wind
I held the door but you wouldn't come in thinking
If it gets strong enough maybe you'd fly
Tried to be cool cause I don't like to cry
But I found a way I could help you be here again
Finally back with your feet on the ground and then
Some of the fears that I've had said goodbye
Could shed a tear but I don't like to cry
Could shed a tear but I don't like to cry
