

Hearts Held so Dear– Wildfire Gypsies - All rights reserved

We were living the fast life of endless decisions
Each one only served to move others aside
And we've had our battles, some scars on our armour
We carry them with us like ribbons of war

Chorus

And where did the time passing go to my dears
When did the days get so short
Why were we never aware of the changes and all of the time we let slip far away
With never enough or too much in our way
Our love was born of a serious wind it carried us onward it held us within
And through every wave there was never a fear
Of running aground with our hearts held so dear

So we build ever new roads the old ones paved over
By all of the people who step in our wake
But if we consider the pace we are walking, will we one day wonder or question our fate

Chorus

So where is the road back to winds that are calmer Places where even the lost can be warm
For that is the new course the future we're plotting
To sail on a smooth sea well far from the storm
